

COSTUME DRESS IN FALL FAVOR

Garment Is Really the Evolution of the Three-Piece Outfit.
Fashion Writer Says.

FUR TRIM FOR STREET SUITS

High, Wrapping Collars Attached to Coats and Cuffs of Sleeves Are Wide, Affording Muffs
When Desired.

The costume dress is really the evolution of the three-piece dress. Just recently, observes a fashion writer, we had the coat and skirt and the costume blouse as the all-around, satisfactory winter utility dress. Before that even it was the coat and the skirt and the shirtwaist. But now it is a dress and a coat to go with it that is chosen by the woman who knows how to be smartly as well as comfortably gown.

The dress can be as ladylike as you please, or as tailored as you please or even an absolutely clinging one. But the coat comes along to cover it all and to make a casual observer believe that the coat is the salient feature of the whole. The outer garment hides the inner one so gracefully that it succeeds in concentrating all attention upon itself and in putting over the idea that nothing that lurks beneath it could touch it for style or for beauty. Then, presto! when the coat is laid aside the dress is so lovely and so well designed that it immediately makes one think, "Why is all this glory hidden away? It should be allowed to show its face even when the coat is buttoned into place."

But no, that is the art of the thing. It is two separate and distinct sorts of beauty and style, each as perfect in its way as is the other one. One is built distinctly for the street, while the other is designed just as clearly and cleverly for the house and each fulfills its place with distinction, and when they are joined together they become just as perfect a whole as one could hope to find in any union. The skirt of the dress usually peeps out from a coat that is three-quarters in length, though this is not by any means the all-pervading rule.

Vying for Success.

The French designers are making these winter gowns de luxe and so are the American ones, each class vying with the other to make the most successful and acceptable things. They are not confined to the dressy type of dress any more than they are relegated in the class where only strictly tailored things are good. But when they do not just naturally slide into either of these well-defined types then they combine something of one with something of the other to a degree which is usually decidedly pleasing. Indeed, there is no doubt that whatever may be the needs of the individual woman, there still will be a costume dress to suit those needs. And, also, she can find this pleasant about with us made and lovable scarfs, now we have the high, wrapping collars attached to our coats and the cuffs of our sleeves are wide and ample enough to be twisted about our hands and to constitute a veritable muff, whenever the wintry blasts may demand that particular kind of attention.

The collars are all high and the cuffs are wide, sometimes even wider than the sleeves themselves. The coats are not always coats, indeed, but often they are capes. But always they are suited most particularly to the demands of the particular wearer, and always they refuse to be anything ordinary or common, else at once they lose that which makes them what they are.

The skirts? Well, the skirts of these costumes just as is the case with skirts of all other sorts of dresses are in a state of very decided fluctuation. At the moment they can be almost any length that suits the individual taste, but one senses a time to come when they will be long or not in the running at all. Now one sees skirts that are very short beside skirts that are unusually long and each of them has style, undoubtedly because they happen to suit the wearer admirably. But how long this state of affairs will persist is really a mystery, and those who are wise will have the hems of their gowns made as adjustable as possible so that if a sudden call comes the length can be added to without any hurt to the lines or proportions of the suit.

Flat One-Piece Effect.
One of these combinations was a frock made of tobacco-brown chiffon, that was draped and folded quite miraculously so that it looked in its entirety like a flat one-piece effect. There was no trimming of any sort upon the gown, even the edges being bound with narrow bindings and piped as their character demanded. Then the coat wrap was made of silk duvetin in exactly the same shade, with that added warmth and richness that naturally accompanies the pile fabric. There were standing collar and very wide cuffs of brown dyed squirrel and a little toque hat of the same fur made with a fluted ribbon trimming. It was a most attractive suit and, as the coat was well interlined beneath the last chiffon layer, it became a thing suited to withstand any sort of cold weather and so light that no one could regret having to wear it.

Some of the coats on these three-piece or costume suits are cut with extremely long waists and circular skirts. One of these, imported from Paris, is made of heavy black tailor's satin. It has trimmings of gray wolf put on in narrow bands and the front of the skirt is slightly draped so that it comes together on the right side front, clasped by a Dutch silver clasp. There is a black satin dress designed to wear with this, and it is artistically combined with black chiffon, so that the thinner material is used every time to form those floating, racy appendages which are so necessary a part of the modern gown.

Collars Are High.
All of the collars are high. Sometimes, as a concession, they slide away into collars that end at the waistline and fold gracefully about the throat when the weather demands that extra sort of protection. But almost always they are straight and high like a cuff poked on the neck. They reach the mouth or curve the mouth and they crush down around the neck until there is quite a bunch of fur matted there. But this is the fashion, and if one's neck rebels at all the covering, then real heroism in the only answer, for wraps and thick collars must be if it is to have the common relation to style. And it cannot stand away from the head about the shoulders as it was allowed to do last season. It must be tight and hugging to the shoulder. These styles make one gray for a cold winter, for they only appear at their best when they are buttoned closely about the throat.

combination of coat and suit at almost any shop, from the highest priced to the lowest priced, where the idea has been so heartily accepted by all who are concerned in providing clothes that will really be satisfactory in every way and suited to the majority of the demands of a busy social or business woman.

Fur Trimming in High Favor.

Fur, of course, in the most accepted trimming for a winter street suit, of any sort needs that a snub it gets. It must be warm, and extra warm about the throat and the hands, at least. And, where once we have

OFFICERS AND MEN.

Senator Watson's charges are to some extent supported by the Private Soldiers' and Sailors' Legion, whose representatives have written Secretary Weeks, in reply to his request for facts concerning the mistreatment of soldiers, that a study of the records will bring to light "all the evidence necessary to prove conclusively that tyranny, brutality and abuse were the rule and not the exception in the attitude of officers toward enlisted men." The organization further charges that "in a large number of cases" company funds were embezzled by officers and spent on a good time.

It may be accepted as altogether probable that there were instances both of brutality and misuse of company funds, though even with this admitted it remains for the Watson charges to be proved. With good, bad and indifferent in every community, it is inevitable that the same elements should be found in every body of soldiers, particularly in a vast and hastily conscripted army. "You can't get together several million saluts for war purposes," as Walter Brower, former Trial Judge Advocate of the 82nd Division, has convincingly expressed it.

The formation of a Legion of private soldiers and sailors is itself significant of hard feeling toward officers among enlisted men, and this feeling by itself could furnish sufficient basis for bitter complaint finally taking the form of wild rumors as to the extremes to which the "tyranny, brutality and abuse" of officers were carried. No doubt many a high-spirited American youth among the conscripted privates was embittered by army social caste alone. In no few instances better reared and educated boys than their officers found themselves made the social inferiors of the latter by an iron military rule, the slightest infraction of which involved humiliating penalties. These rules, setting officers apart as a social aristocracy of the most rock-ribbed sort, were made when democracy was an utterly discredited principle, and have been handed down to the present day practically without change.

The attempt to modify such rules and bring them more into harmony with modern conditions of democracy, without the sacrifice of imperative discipline, would obviously present a problem bristling with difficulties. There may be no solution; it may be that even an attempted solution would prove disastrous, rendering an army unmanageable. But it can be readily understood that a young officer who did no more than his plain duty under the regulations might be regarded as intolerably "insolent" by the private who had the feelings and instincts of the average American youth, and that unfounded charges and even wild tales of mistreatment could grow out of the feelings of outrage which the regulations inevitably produce in many cases.

THE HOME FIRES.

Every householder in this vast country, except in the lower sections of the Gulf States and southern California, will fully appreciate the remarks of the Philadelphia Public Ledger on the "Moloch in the Cellar," as follows:

Man as a householder is free for only five months out of the twelve. The rest of the time he is a slave, a subject creature, bound with chains unbreakable. He suffers under a tyranny, inevitable, merciless. And his little, private, absolute monarch lives in the poor devil's own cellar. Taking form similar to the black and tented octopus, that tyrant abides stationary and causes obedience to be brought to him for the barmaid. His horrid mouth opens early in October and abides not its demand until the setting up time of snow in the spring. Food is his constant demand, and air, attention, he craves, and with it, he craves the most degrading slave ever known, the dog coming into the glowing heart of his monarch, offering for delectation choice goods at $15 a ton.

And the equally imperative shouting out of the rebellious slave when he is even less delectable than the slave in the cellar. A few years ago we sang "Keep the Home Fires Burning" with a desire of cheerfulness, but now we know this patriotic duty was only temporary, but there is only the summer let-up in the duty of keeping the literal home fires going, a business that extends from the cradle to the grave.

It is of interest to note that a South Carolina court has awarded $2,000 damages to the widow of a negro named Joe Stuart, who, in April, 1920, was taken from the jail in Laurens, S. C., and hanged by a mob. Suit was brought in the Common Pleas court and the presiding justice instructed the jury to return a verdict against the county for the full amount. In future county authorities in South Carolina are likely to make a greater effort to protect a negro prisoner from intending lynchers, now that they face the prospects of having to pay damages to the extent of even so moderate a sum of $2,000.

2. Will bears attack human beings?

3. My premises are over-run with chicken mites from a hen we allowed to nest under the porch. What can I do?

Answers In Tomorrow's Nature Notes.

Answers To Previous Questions:

1. Is it good for pet rabbits to give them a bath in the summertime?

We cannot say, but on general principles should think it unsafe, being contrary to the animal habit.

2. What is a katy-did, and from what form of animal life does it come?

It belongs to the grasshopper, Locustidae, but is not a locust. Is bright green, has long antennae, and broad wings, rather leaf-shaped, and holds them together at a sharp ridge at the center of the back. Feeds mostly in trees, but is also found in bushes, etc. Katy-dids are hatched from eggs which are commonly laid along a stem or at the edge of a leaf, lapping over shingle-fashion.

3. Why are different species of birds different colors? I don't mean different coat in the different sexes, but in different classes, as robin, bluebird, etc.

Nobody can tell you "why," except that different pigments make different colors in feathers, but this does not explain why nature gives different pigments. (Robin and bluebird are related, by the way, both thrushes, and are not different "classes.") Brownish tones of ground birds are supposed to offer protection, but birds like tanagers and cardinals certainly do not reflect their backgrounds. Possibly diet may influence the colors somewhat. We can only guess.

ON-A-JOB, OFF-A-JOB JIM!

Being a Story
Of how Jim got on a job and why he got off it again.

Jim waited for his gravel until he was out of patience. "Where is the gravel pit, and where does this Moriaty live?" he finally asked the captain.

"Go half a mile up the road and turn in at a white farm house. That's Moriaty's house. There's a cart road that will take you back to the pit."

"Very well, I'm going to see if he's manufacturing the sand. I ought to have two good days for that cement. Half the first one is gone already."

But Jim's plans were like many plans of mice and men. They went astray when he arrived at the farm house and heard the groans that reached him from the kitchen. Upon investigation, he learned that Tom had an exceedingly painful bunion on the sole of his foot. "If you think I'll bring you gravel or anything else, with this foot of mine, you are very much mistaken," he spluttered.

"Let me hire your horse and team. I'll drive over enough for our use. What say?"

"Do anything you like, only don't bother me."

So Jim's job, for the next few days, was that of leading gravel into the tip-cart and driving it to the life-saving station. His start had been so delayed, the drives back and forth had taken up so much time, that he was obliged to use up most of the second day for carting also.

There was a dog at Moriaty's that caused Jim's wrath to rise, every time he approached the gravel hole. He was an ugly brute, that growled whenever he saw a wheel, and he showed the cart road, wherever he appeared, until he heard Moriaty's whistle when he ceased his snipping.

On the afternoon of the second day, Moriaty must have been taking a nap, for the dog seemed free to do what he pleased without check. He was laying for Jim who paid no attention to the growling canine until he jumped to the ground in order to shoot the gravel into the cart. "Get away, you chump!" cried Jim, leaping to one side as the dog made for his trousers. "Go home!"

"Grrrrrr!" snarled the dog, lowering his head and diving for the other leg, which Jim managed to remove just in time. "You try that again and I'll kick you to Jericho!"

The dog paid no attention, but made a spring at his throat. Jim caught him under the stomach with his leg, and with all his strength, flung him through the air. He landed across an iron rod of a rusty mowing machine thirty feet away, and lay motionless.

The softest thing about Jim was his heart, and when he saw the inert form of the dog, he repeated of his action. "Poor dog!" he muttered, approaching the body.

"Look out, stand back!" came a voice from behind, followed by a brisk whistling. The dog straightened his legs, pulled up his head, rose, and slunk off into the woods. "It's a trick that dog has, of playing dead and then springing at a fellow."

"He ought to be strung up!" exclaimed the exasperated Jim. "He isn't safe to be around. What do you keep him for?"

"The best watch dog in the country," returned Moriaty as he limped towards the house.

"See here," Jim stopped him. "I've got to make a few more trips here. Will you keep that dog under cover till I get through? I'm no coward, but I do refuse to having my ankles used for bowstreak by any dog."

"BEECH-NUT" TRADE MARK.

Lorillard's Permitted To Use It On Tobacco Products.

In an opinion just handed down in the Patent Office, P. Lorillard Company has been held entitled to use the trade mark "Beech-Nut" for tobacco products, including cigarettes.

The case arose from an application filed by the Beech-Nut Packing Company in the Summer of 1919 for the registration of this trade-mark for cigarettes. The Packing Company based its application upon the use it and its predecessors had theretofore made of the trade mark for many years, beginning about 1881 for snuff, and gradually extended until it included cigarettes, cigars and chewing gum, many of which were patented articles and some of which has been lately sold in stores selling tobacco products.

P. Lorillard Company opposed this application, claiming its application of the trade mark for cigarettes was the first use of it, and its predecessors of the brand for tobacco products, including cigarettes, although at that time the Lorillard Company had not used the trade-mark for cigarettes.

It appeared in the testimony that the use of the trade mark "Beech-Nut" for Chewing Tobacco was begun by the Harry Weissman Tobacco Company about 1887, and that the ownership of the brand for this purpose had come to P. Lorillard Company through sale by the Harry Weissman Tobacco Company to Continental Tobacco Company by Continental Tobacco Company to Lorillard Company and by the latter named company to P. Lorillard Company.

The examination in the Patent Office held that P. Lorillard Company has a right to use the trade-mark "Beech-Nut" for tobacco products, including the use of this trade-mark for the "Beech-Nut" brand of cigarettes, cigars, chewing gum and other tobacco products, and that this right included the right to use the trade-mark for cigarettes. The ground of the decision is that tobacco products are goods of entirely different descriptive qualities from groceries, meats, candy and chewing gum.

Accordingly the opposition of P. Lorillard Company was sustained and the application of the packing company to register the trade-mark "Beech-Nut" for cigarettes denied.

big and little folks to eat
Kellogg's Corn Flakes

Just as soon as you serve Kellogg's you'll note fussy and faded appetites getting mighty sharp; you'll find big bowls being handed back for "just a few more Kellogg's, mother—they're wonderful!"

And, that'll make you glad, for Kellogg's Corn Flakes are a great speed-start for the day's doings! They make for health and happy digestions! Kellogg's are never leathery or tough, but always joyously crisp!

Kellogg's—the original Corn Flakes—will be a revelation to your taste if you have been eating imitations! For your own enjoyment, do this:—compare the big, sunny-brown Kellogg's Corn Flakes with other "corn flakes." Eat some of Kellogg's—then try the imitations! You'll realize then why Kellogg's Corn Flakes are the largest and fastest selling cereal in the whole world!

Do more than ask for "corn flakes." Insist upon KELLOGG'S Corn Flakes in the RED and GREEN package! My, but it's worth while!

HEARING HELD ON PALTZ TROLLEY

A hearing was held at the court house in Poughkeepsie Monday, on the complaint made by Supervisor Luther D. Wilklow, of the town of Lloyd, Ulster county, to the State Public Service Commission, to compel the New Paltz and Highland Traction Company to repair its tracks at two points along the route for the purpose of laying a new concrete pavement. Several witnesses were sworn, who testified to the alleged dangerous condition of the tracks at these two points.

D. H. Merritt, a civil engineer, of Highland, one of the witnesses, stated he had investigated the conditions and found that a large number of the ties are missing and that the others are decayed and in a bad state of preservation. The rails he stated, are only four inches high and are rusted, and there is no ballast under the tracks.

R. O. Winans, assistant engineer of the Public Service Department, acted as commissioner at the hearing. Joseph Duffy, of Jersey City, the president of the traction company, appeared as attorney for the company, while A. W. Lent was attorney for Supervisor Wilklow.

D. H. Z. Bogart, an engineer, of Poughkeepsie, was also one of the witnesses, and he testified to the dangerous condition of the tracks at two points of the road, one spot being near the school house at Highland and the other a short distance away, both in the town of Lloyd.

THE OFFICE CAT

She Wasn't Hungry.

Said a delicate girl from Silver Lake. To the waiter "I really can't take a full meal, so instead, bring me coffee and bread. Backsheet cakes, ham and eggs and a steak."

Rodger, the little son of one of our readers, had been asking his mother about God, and she explained that He lived in the heavens. The next day the youngster, no longer an sceptic, came out of the sky and made a landing near his mother and exclaimed: "Come out quick, ma, and see—God's got a fat tire."

Quicker, Ma.

"Now they are advocating a third pay for married women."

"That will interest husbands who have over their entire salaries."

"Don't ever shower your infant with baby talk. There will be time enough for that when she grows up and gets a head."

A Trying Situation.

"I wish my name wasn't Adeline. Mother complained that little girl to her mother one day."

"Why, dear? I think it is a pretty name."

WILLOW.

Willow, Nov. 17.—Captain and Mrs. C. F. Peters and the Misses Sally and Astrid Peters of New York were entertained over the week end by Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Osterander at their home in Silver Hollow. Captain Peters served with distinction during the world war. First in the Serbian army and later with the French before Verdun. He is well known as an artist, being on the staff of life. Relief Operations for Year on Tremendous Scale.

CHILDREN CHIEF CONCERN

Health Units Established in All War-Ravaged Areas. Says Annual Report—Thousands of Children Being Rescued From the Mire of War Has Visited Upon Them—$40,000 Persons in Austria Helped With Food, Clothing and Medical Supplies.

American Red Cross relief operations in Europe during the last year were concerned almost entirely in aiding otherwise helpless herds of refugees and establishing a chain of child health units that are rescuing thousands of children from the misery that has visited upon them, says the annual report of the Red Cross.

In Austria the American Red Cross program resulted in the distribution of food, clothing and medical supplies to 500,000 persons, mostly children; gave employment to garment makers to 40,000 native women; provided 25, 000,000 francs worth of medical and other supplies to 235 hospitals, 3,800 beds to institutions caring for 27,000 children and assisted organizations reaching 107,000 persons.

In South Russia and Constantinople the organization was called upon to suddenly care for 150,000 refugees, who were forced to leave the Crimea when Wrangel's army collapsed. It distributed all the supplies originally placed at its disposal in the Near East, $300,000 sent by the Russian embassy in the United States and an additional $400,000 worth of supplies from its own reserve fund.

In Poland 48,000 refugees who had led before the Russian soviet invasion were cared for. 500,000 children were assisted with food and clothing. For-most solid work was conducted in many hospitals for children, more than 1,000 hospital cases were cared for weekly and a minimum of 70,000 persons were fed in a single month.

Aid for Earthquake Victims.
In Italy the chief work of the American Red Cross last year was relief given in the Magna and Tuscany earthquake, when it had 215 units with all relief supplies erected and in operation within 48 hours.

In Hungary the outstanding feature of the work for the year was the distribution to needy children and refugees of 1,000,000 articles of clothing and the mobilization of 30,000 native women in a nationwide knitting campaign. The total relief supply contributions of the Red Cross in Hungary for the year averaged ten tons a day.

In Greece 50,000 Greek refugees from the Caucasus were assisted with food and clothing and later were given such supplies that a large number of them were able to colonize in 52 deserted villages and resume their normal occupations. A complete child-health program was also inaugurated among 10,000 children.

GOT RICH ON FARM

Prosperous Canadian Woman Was Once Poor.

Mrs. Mary J. Blackburn, a pioneer woman farmer of Alberta, Canada, has just added 100 acres to her farm near Hardisty.

Coming from Eastern Canada, Mrs.
Blackburn homesteaded a quarter section in 1902. She had two Holstein heifers, a bull and $17 in cash. She lived in a tent the first summer and in a sod shack in the winter.

Her first crop put her, as she tells the story, "on Easy street." In ten years she had a herd of sixty purebred Holstein cattle and was operating a prosperous dairy. A fire resulted had supplanted the sod hut.

"I milked the cows, raised my cattle, cut hay and stacked it, all by myself," said Mrs. Blackburn.

NEW YORK LOSES

Historic Old Union Square Thea-

MORTON HOUSE ALSO TO GO

History of Morton House and the Theater Are Closely Linked—Theater
Once First-Class Producing Playhouse, in Which Many of the Famous Actors and Actresses of the Present Day Made Their Debut—
Ended Up as Burlesque House.

Two historic landmarks of New York—the Union Square theater and the Morton house—which have stood for half a century in Union square, at one time New York's elite, are to be razed to make way for more modern structures.

The Union Square theater, built and opened by Sheridan Shook in 1871, began as a variety house. Later it became a first-class producing playhouse, in which many of the famous actors and actresses of the present day made their debut. It winds up its career as a burlesque theater.

In Days of A. M. Palmer.
As a variety or vaudeville house it opened with a program including the Marinette-Bavel troupe of pantomim-ists, the team of Harlan and Hart, and Jefferson de Angelle. When A. M.
Palmer, who afterward made the Palmer Stock company famous in America and England, was placed in charge of the theater, he began staging a series of London revivals, with Miss Agnes Ethel, once leading lady for Augustin Daly, in the lead.
Others in the company were Kate Claxton, Clara Morris, Eliza Weather-
by, who afterwards became Mrs. Nat
Goodwin; Clara Jennings and Emily Mestayer. James O'Neill, later of "Monte Cristo" fame; J. H. Stoddard,
Mark Smith, Charles R. Thorne, Jr., Maude Harrison and Agnes Booth came later.

New plays were soon added by the company, which took on other players, including McKee Rankin, Louis
Aldrich, John Fursette, C. T. Farnole,
Minnie Palmer, Rose Evinger, F. F.
Machan, Marie Wilkins, Charles Oghlan and Richard Mansfield.

The most famous success of the Union Square was the "Two Orphans," translated from the French and hawked about for $1,500 until Palmer read it. It ran 180 nights, and was the sensation of the theatrical season.
Kate Claxton, who played Louise, the blind girl, bought it outright and played it for twenty years.

Other famous plays produced were
"The Banker's Daughter," "My Partners," "The Celebrated Case," "Arkwright's Wife" and "Brighton." The successes were followed by stock productions, in which Frank Mayo, Minnie Palmer, Nellie Howard, Owen Fawcett, Kate Dennis Wilson, Charles L. Harris, Lawrence d'Orsay and An-gustine Oook and others played.

The first performance of "The Milardo" in New York was given in the Union Square, with Roland Reed and Alice Harrison in the title roles.

Charlie Chaplin Made Debut Here.
In 1885 James M. Hill took the theater and brought out a new and unheard-of star, Margaret Mather, and put on "Romeo and Juliet." During his management Chauncey Olcott obtained his first engagement to opera.
A little later Charlie Chaplin, now famous moving-picture comedian, made his debut in New York, with a small part in a specialty company, which lasted a week and was a "frost."
Later the theater was turned over to Keith, who operated it as a vaudeville house for many years, after which it became a burlesque stock house.

The history of the theater and the Morton house are closely linked, as they adjoined. The latter was a great place for the meeting of the actors and managers. It was also the home of a group of politicians of the old school, of which John Kelly, the old registrar and Tammany leader of the East side, was dean. His table in the Morton was always surrounded by friends of that day.

FIND SKELETONS IN CAIRNS

Forest Rangers in Nevada Discover Evidence of Old Crime.
Forest rangers in the Ruby mountains in Nevada recently found two cairns, one of which contained the skeleton of a man and the other that of a dog. Nearby was an old-style pack mule. They thought the bones had been placed there not more than six or eight years ago, as fragments of clothing still adhered to the man's bones. Murder is believed to have been done and the dog to have been killed and buried following the death of his master, so that he would not attract attention to the spot. County authorities are investigating.

done in a great flood which has swept

Success.
"No real man ever reaches what he calls 'success,'" said one of the biggest business men in this country.
No one with high ideals is ever satisfied with his own achievement. With every high point gained, some higher peak still looms ahead. Because the high spirit reaches earth's last boundary and finds the goal still unattained, there must be new opportunities still waiting beyond. Even the desert mir-age is but a reflection of what really exists somewhere.

Scarcely Counted Like Sheep.
The only herd of wild animals in the world of which a yearly census is taken are the fur seals of the Pribiloff islands, in the Bering sea.
Once they numbered between five and six million, but they were slaughtered so ruthlessly for their skins that by 1908 there were less than a hundred thousand on the islands. Now they are protected by international agreement, and the herd is mustered and counted every year just like a flock of sheep.

Scarcely Accounted For.
One never loses anything by politness, but a lot of people seem afraid to risk it.—Boston Transcript.

An invitation was read from the committee on invitations in connection with the celebration of the opening ceremonies of the Rondout Creek bridge on November 29, requesting the board of supervisors to attend and take part in the celebration. It was filed and later Supervisor Saxe offered a resolution that the invitation be accepted and that Chairman Hathaway of the committee be notified that the members of the board would participate. Supervisor Erie offered a resolution that the assessment roll of 1920 of the town of Denning be corrected owing to an omission in copying, and that a number of parcels of land so omitted be placed on the assessment roll of that year and taxes against the omitted property be levied this year at the rate of 1920. Laid over.

Resolutions of a similar character but of different properties and of assessed values were offered by Supervisors Ellsworth of Esopus, Wilcox of Lloyd, Shaw of New Paltz, McMahon of Olive, Schoonmaker of Rochester, Auchmoody of Rosendale, and Frutcher of Saugerties, all of which went over under the rule.

The following resolutions were offered and went over under the rule: Supervisor Burke—That the several amounts of unpaid school taxes reported by school collectors be levied together with seven per cent interest

Supervisor Flemming—That a tax of one per cent be levied upon the several shares of bank stock in the several banks and banking associations of the county of Ulster as per statement furnished the various assessors on the first day of June, 1921, and that the clerk of the board mail to the president or cashier of said banks a statement setting forth the amounts of the capital stock, surplus and undivided profits, the number of outstanding shares, the value of each share of stock taxable in said county, and the aggregate amount of tax to be collected and paid by such bank or banking associations.

On motion of Supervisor Schermerhorn the board of supervisors adjourned until Thursday evening, November 17, at 7:30 o'clock.

SAMSONVILLE.

On account of the rain on Friday night there was no church service, which was to be held by the Rev. G. Wilsey of Ashokan.

There is some talk of a Thanksgiving social as some young people who have employment away are expected home at that time. Watch for the date in a later issue.

Really Poor People.

People reckon themselves poor as they lack money, yet there is a greater poverty. Many men and women go through the world unaware of the beauty, the goodness, and the glories in it. Such people, though they have money, are poor indeed.

STRONG ON TALK

This Land Too Full of Half-Baked Theorists.

What Good-Natured Americans Have to Endure in These Days is Surely "A Plenty."

Americans are probably the most fully advised people on earth. The whole land is full of emergency rostrums where people who have a passion for advising their brethren may repair and relieve their minds in detail.

No people are more talked to and talked at, and no people are more tolerant and good-natured about it.

Not only is the land full of native advisory talent, but advisers have here from other lands and insist upon explaining matters to us—giving us the low down and the real McCoy on a variety of topics, many of them exceedingly dull.

The land is full of well fed, impractical theorists who have thought it all out and are willing and anxious to tell about it, asserts Glenn M. Farley in the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Most of the fluent speakers are men who have never done anything in all their long lives but write or talk. They never, by any chance, have got into the thick of things themselves; never been horned around and pushed and shoved and stepped on, or acquired calloused hands or practical experience in working for a living; never stood up to the East Wind of Hard Luck and Hard Work and Won Through in spite of discouragements.

Still they are perfectly willing to explain matters and tell how to correct our sad mistakes of judgment.

The land is full of instructors without appointment and guides without certificates.

Is it any wonder that we are so often on the wrong track? Is it not a miracle that we are on the road at all and making progress?

The land is full of critics, men anxious to point out the errors of poor, lost, wandering humanity; men keen to tear down and destroy the work of others and furnish nothing constructive to replace it; men full of theories, but short on practice.

It is a fine thing for a citizen to have a helpful theory, but a still finer thing for him to work it out.

It seems to come natural to a lot of people to explain matters. When a citizen feels moved to go out in the back yard and undertake to plant a garden some neighbor is quite apt to step over and lean on the fence and explain to him precisely how the garden should be put in.

What a splendid, grand, glorious thing it would be if all the volunteer instructors and guides and exhorters would stop talking and go to work themselves!

As it is, a lot of the listeners are getting nervous. They are getting reasonably well fed up with instruction. When a man who has been through the mill raises his voice in counsel, he generally has something of value to say.

But when a party with a gas bag moves in and begins to release the gas he becomes a nuisance to everybody. He annoys people who are really working and accomplishing something, and often drops a monkey wrench or a screw driver into the machinery.

There are orators running around with a load of misinformation who would probably be all right if they had a bath and a haircut and consented to go to work.

Anyhow, it would be worth trying, and it would be a wonderful relief to the public.

There are entirely too many able-bodied men standing around instructing others and awaiting a formal introduction to hard work.

This country's business and industry would bounce like a rubber ball if we could contrive to induce every able-bodied man to turn his hand to some useful work and stop peddling talk.

What we need is a moratorium on volunteer misinformation.

As it is the season for the talkfest is over, and the janitor will soon be putting out the lights.

Island Spar.
One of the most interesting of nature's processes is that by which cracks in volcanic rocks are filled in with materials brought up in hot solutions from the bowels of the earth. It is by this means that "veins" and "lodes" of gold and silver are formed.

In the eastern part of Iceland there is a locality where such cracks in rocks have been filled in with a pure carbonate of lime which forms clear and beautiful crystals. These crystals, called "island spar," have a peculiar property of "polarizing" light, which makes them valuable for use in connection with microscopes and other optical instruments.

Within the last few years deposits of island spar have been discovered in Swaziland, Mozambique, and in the Warner range near Cedarville, Ohio. Efforts are being made to develop them. —Philadelphia Ledger.

Disseminating Enthusiasm.

The new owner of the town was approached by some ladies and asked if he would not like to send his children to Sunday school. They were decidedly startled when he replied: "Oh, yes, indeed, I am here on Sunday evenings." —Harper's Magazine.

Made Considered Lucky.

In Russia and other other countries such are considered lucky and money-bringers. A Russian will keep him in his house, and it is said that he will give him the best of the other secret in 1940 or thereabouts.

HIS DANCING DAYS NOT OVER

Civil War Veteran Astonished Hotel Loungers During Recent Reunion at Indianapolis.

When the "boys in blue" went marching down Pennsylvania street toward Washington, the masses of spectators to the left and right were astonished to see two men, who a moment before had seemed as weary and spent as any in the column, break step, link arms and shy to the west curb where, for 50 yards, they executed a dance, a sort of double jig, of which their aged limbs seemed incapable. Some of the comrades on the sidewalk at the east side of Illinois street near the Hotel Severin, were discussing this feat in the evening. Two civilians who had witnessed the airy capers joined in the comment, and the "meeting" agreed that the antic was remarkable. While this talk was flowing an old soldier from lower Ohio came near and listened. He was a little past eighty years; his beard mantled his breast; his weight was a trifle under 300 pounds, and there was a twinkle in each of his eyes.

"She, that wasn't much to do," he piped in a voice unexpectedly small and high.

The members of the "club meeting" looked at him sharply, as if to ask on what grounds he presumed to belittle the acrobatics of comrades. The aged Ohioan's eyes twinkled like two stars. He knew what was passing in the minds of the men he had interrupted, and he meant to answer them by deeds. Before they realized his purpose, he pitched his broad-brimmed hat aside, gave a hitch to his trousers, and danced a double-shuffle at a rate reminding the "audience" of a rotor drum roll. Had the hotel building reared up and spun round the little crowd would scarcely have been more astonished. Three minutes the jig chattered on, then with a triumphant glance about him, the dancer stopped, caught up his hat and tramped down street without a word. —Indianapolis News.

Predicting Height.

How much will J. Edgar and Mary grow? Dr. E. D. Baldwin, director of the child welfare research station of the University of Iowa has been periodically measuring and weighing a thousand boys and girls for periods of eight to twelve years, and he is able to prophesy how children under good conditions will grow. At the second international conference of eugenics in New York recently he said that a mother can measure the height of her seven-year-old child, increase it by a third and know within an inch or so the height that her son or daughter will attain when seventeen years old, how power from now. Girls are likely to attain the height at a somewhat earlier age than the boys.

Children Snatched From Starvation by American Jewish Relief Workers Regain Health in School Gardens

Are you tired of looking at pictures of starving children overseas?

Then rest your eyes on these happy, healthy girls and boys working in a school garden just outside of Grodno. They represent a part of the salvage. When the agents of the American Jewish Relief Committee found them they were suffering from malnutrition, incipient tuberculosis and other diseases incident to starvation. The relief workers took them out in the country, fed them and gave them a chance for life.

But they are only a few of the lucky ones. The soup lines are still forming. Thousands died before help could reach them. The American Jewish Relief Committee since 1913, before America even got into the war, has sent $4,000,000 for the relief of Europe. Now its workers report that the need exists for $14,000,000 more. That is not the most that can be used. It represents rather the least sum that can be asked if the program of relief necessary to save life is to be continued.

Towns and villages where typhus is raging because the war destroyed their water and sewerage systems are being aided in re-establishing at least a minimal sanitary service. Bath houses are being rebuilt and decontaminating stations and sanitary landfills are being set up so the people can escape from the filth and swamps which not only imperil their own existence but form a breeding place for epidemics that sweep the world.

The contributions made by Americans are being supplemented by generous gifts from European countries. The committee asked for $14,000,000 more for the relief of Europe. Now its workers report that the need exists for $14,000,000 more. That is not the most that can be used. It represents rather the least sum that can be asked if the program of relief necessary to save life is to be continued.

Louis Marshall of New York is chairman of the American Jewish Relief Committee, whose headquarters are at 108 Park Avenue, New York. Associated with him in the work of the committee are such men as Dr. Cyrus Adler of Philadelphia, John Rosenwald of Chicago, Felix M. Warburg, Henry Morgenthau, Nathan Straus of New York, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York. The work of saving the children for the future is being done by the American Jewish Relief Committee, which has been organized by Dr. A. J. Cohen of Detroit, who is chairman of the national committee of the American Jewish Relief Committee.

Enamel Used as Cement.

Enamel has been used successfully in cementing machinery in China. The process is applied and an enamel that cures in ten minutes is used off the heat of the furnace. The enamel is then left for two or three weeks to harden, when the excess enamel is rubbed off with sandpaper. The article is then ready for use and will hold just as well as gold solder and rivets.

Really Poor People.

People living in the slums of New York City are really poor people. They lack money, but they are not really poor. They are poor because they are not getting the most out of the things they have. They are poor because they are not getting the most out of the things they have. They are poor because they are not getting the most out of the things they have.

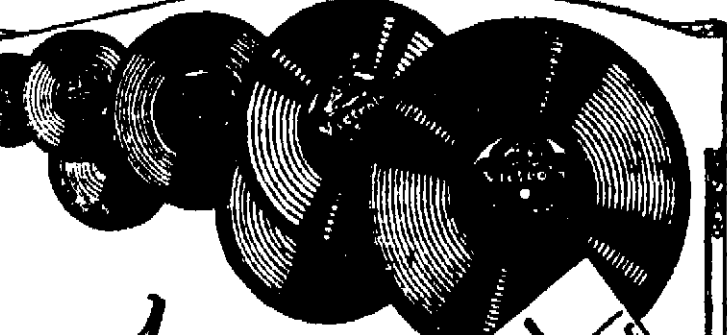

The Problem of the Slums.

The problem of the slums is a very real one. It is a problem that has been with us for many years. It is a problem that has been with us for many years. It is a problem that has been with us for many years.

Miss Gertrude Eggett.

Miss Gertrude Eggett, aged 25, of Fresno, California, is the most beautifully formed young woman in America. At least that is what the judges in a contest in which over 10,000 photographs were submitted decided. The slender, marvelously supple girl is a natural athlete. She is a brunette, with brown eyes and dark brown hair, perfect teeth and superabundant vitality and health. Although 25, she does not look over 20. She is 5 feet, 7 inches in height and weighs 136 pounds.

RIOTS FOLLOW PRINCE'S SPEECH

Native Police And Soldiers In Bombay Stirred Up To Demand India For The Indians.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Bombay, India, Nov. 17.—Following a speech by the Prince of Wales here, serious riots occurred in the native quarters of the city. There were many casualties.

The Prince of Wales, who arrived on his tour of the Orient about the warship Renown, was carefully guarded by British home troops. He expressed sorrow at the trend of events.

The rioting was between native police and soldiers and sections of the lower classes, that have been stirred up to demand "India for the Indians."

Whether the rioting will have any effect upon the extent of the prince's tour in India was not announced.

London, Nov. 17.—When the Prince of Wales's visit to India and Japan was arranged there was great fear by both government officials and the Royal Family that the journey might be marked by disorder and even violence toward the prince. The trip was postponed for a time owing to the acute Indian situation. Having been decided upon the trip finally was launched, following a tearful farewell by Queen Mary and Princess Mary.

FARM BUREAU HAS 961 MEMBERS

Membership's Campaign Closed—It turns Incomplete, and Number May be Increased to About 1,000.

The Farm Bureau membership campaign came to a close on Tuesday night, November 15, with 961 members but the canvassers have not yet turned in their completed reports, so that the total membership signed up by the 15th of November will be about 1,000 members.

Team No. 3, H. M. Eppes and M. H. Davis, wrote the largest number of members, signing up 332 members from Hurley to Ellenville, including Tugore. Team No. 1 came second with 255 members in the Hudson Valley, including Clintonville and Ashbury. Team No. 2 came third with 250 members in the Wallkill Valley, including Mt. Marion and Woodstock. E. W. Huthaway, working in Kingston and Saugerties, secured 121 members in the two towns.

Two communities increased their membership. Mt. Marion and Lake Katrine increased from 46 to 102 members to 49 five dollar members. Flatbush increased from 12 to 15 members.

The confidence of the farmers of the county in the work of the local bureau and the state and American Farm Bureau Federation has been demonstrated by the fact that 75 per cent of the former members have renewed their membership in the bureau.

IMPOSSIBLE TO "SAVE" CHINA

Efforts of Western World Unavailing, According to Writer, in Face of Her Social System.

The chronic root-cause of China's trouble lies in the Chinese social system, which renders an excessively high birth rate inevitable, and the penalties of the severe economic pressure thus created can never be averted, or even sensibly mitigated, by any change in political institutions, or by any effort of philanthropy. So long as the deep-rooted patriarchal family system (which is the basis of Chinese civilization) obtains and China continues, as the result of that system, to produce three generations to Europe's two, no long must plague, pestilence and famine continue to adjust the inexorable balance between a redundant population and a limited food supply. They have done so for thousands of years, declares J. O. P. Bland, in Asia Magazine.

Those who, ignoring the economic results of the Chinese social system, propose to "save" her by means of a "new culture" or by industrialism or by democratic institutions, may be animated by the best of intentions, but none of their panaceas can ever remove the fundamental cause of China's weakness, which is also that of her time-tested strength. History and science alike forbid the belief that the structural character and race mind of the nation, which has developed its own highly specialized and fundamentally moral type of civilization under the influences of the family system and Confucianism, can be rapidly changed in their essentials, either by moral crusades or political innovations. Nor can these ever avert from the masses of the people calamities such as the famine now raging in north China, which have been from time immemorial part of the accepted order of things. And while we are on this subject it is worthy of note that, whereas none of our religious and philanthropic efforts to save China include recognition of the root-cause of her material afflictions, or any attempt to deal with it, many of them tend directly to increase the already intolerable pressure of population upon the available means of subsistence, and thus, all unconsciously, to aggravate the over-land elements of unrest. When one reflects that every year out of the 20,000,000 or so of Chinese babies born, at least 15,000,000 on an average are doomed to perish in infancy, and that if, by some means, these lives were saved, even during the space of ten years, the result could only be a terrible increase of overcrowding, poverty and disease, the problem of "saving" China by virtue of a democratic constitution, by the building of railways or by the consolations of the Christian faith, takes on a new and pitiful complexion.

Success.

"No real man ever reaches what he calls 'success,'" said one of the biggest business men in this country. No one with high ideals is ever satisfied with his own achievement. With every high point gained, some higher peak still looms ahead. Because the high spirit reaches earth's last boundary and finds the goal still unattained, there must be new opportunities still waiting beyond. Even the desert mirage is but a reflection of what really exists somewhere.

Money in Cocoon.

In the last few years a strong and growing interest has developed in coon culture in the Philippine Islands. Not only are the native planters availing of the advantages of modern methods, but foreign capital and enterprise see a prosperous future in the industry. It is virtually impossible for the prospective planter to either purchase or lease a bearing cocoon grove, but large areas of virgin land are available for new plantations, more especially in the New provinces, where conditions are ideal for coon culture.

SOCIETY NOTES

Joyce-McGinn.

Wednesday evening, at 5:30 o'clock a very quiet, but pretty wedding took place at St. Peter's Church, Rosendale, when Miss Katherine McGinn of Rosendale and Bartholomew Joyce of this city, were united in marriage by the Rev. Edward J. Higgins. They were attended by Miss Ann McGinn, sister of the bride, and Thomas M. Grimes of Port Ewen. The bride wore a traveling suit of Harding blue with hat to match and carried bridal roses. The bridesmaid wore a suit of dark blue with hat to match and carried pink carnations. Mr. and Mrs. Joyce left for an extended trip through the south. They will reside in Jersey City, N. J., where a newly furnished home awaits them.

Atharhacton Club.

Mrs. Dunbar was the hostess of the Atharhacton Club this week, and had the paper for the day. She most interestingly told, "The Story of my Life," by A. J. C. Hare. This club will be the first to take up a piece of philanthropic work to be participated in by all the women's clubs which will give far more pleasure than the women can realize. It is planned that each month the clubs will, one or other of them, give an entertainment at the Tuberculosis Hospital, and on Saturday evening of this week the Atharhacton Club will be the entertaining club. Those most interested in the Tuberculosis Hospital have felt seriously the need of some sort of frequent entertainment for the patients, who for the most part are not as seriously sick as are people in other hospitals, and therefore upon whom the loneliness and monotony of their days really becomes a hindrance to their improvement if not recovery. The managers and Tuberculosis Committee, gratefully hail this movement. Two weeks hence, November 23rd, the Atharhacton Club will meet with Mrs. Owens.

Monte Carlo's Big Profits.

At the annual general meeting of the Casino's shareholders at Monte Carlo recently it was announced that the receipts for the year 1920-21 were 61,000,000 francs from roulette and trent et quarante, 6,000,000 from baccarat and chemin de fer, and 3,000,000 from entrance fees, the total being 69,000,000 francs. This is 12,000,000 more than last year. The expenses were 47,000,000 francs, the profit being 22,000,000.

A dividend of 275 francs per share was declared, which, with the 25 francs paid last November, makes a total dividend of 300 francs per share. This is 30 francs more than was paid last year.

It is said that the "Ups" contributed by winners at the various tables for the benefit of the employees amounted to as much as 6,500,000 francs. Thus the grand total "left" by players at the Casino and the Sporting club works out at 75,500,000 francs.

But that there are chances for somebody is proved by the feat of a Mr. Stensden, who won 520,000 francs one Sunday, on which day the money at the table had to be replenished no fewer than five times.

Reclaiming Used Paper.

Though chemical processes for the reclamation of printed book paper have been in use for some time, their efficiency is reduced by the fact that the mechanical pulping forces the ink permanently into the fibers, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. By a method recently patented, a mixture of ten pounds of borax, ten pounds of soap, two gallons of kerosene and two gallons of pine oil is used for soaking 2,000 pounds of stock, with enough water to make a three to six per cent pulp. The beater used pulls the stock apart gently, with a minimum breakage of the fibers, and the process is continued for an hour or less, with the pulp heated to from 165 to 190 degrees Fahrenheit by live steam. The separated ink and the chemicals are then washed away by the usual method, and the reclaimed pulp is ready to be bleached.

Fast Flying Boats.

We have heard much lately of fast submarines. The latest development is the fast flying boat—that is, craft which, mounted, can cruise with the fleet. The new boats built for the British navy are known as the Felix-stone Fury type. They weigh 15 tons, have a wing span of 140 feet, 100-horse engines, with a total horsepower of 2,000, giving a range of about 1,500 miles. They have a crew of seven. These boats will go out with the fleet and will remain with it, when not scouting. They will sail on the surface; and the built have been constructed of sufficient strength to enable them to dive in any weather.

Placing the Responsibility.
